SERMON TELLS OF LIVES THAT LIVE

ONLY RIGHTEOUSNESS IS REMEMBERED SAYS SNODGRASS.

CLASS PLAYS TONIGHT

W. L. Harding, Former Governor of Iowa, Will Deliver Annual Address Tomorrow Morning.

"Would you keep your name from oblivion? Then do something for God and humanity. Good men and women live forever, but a wicked man is soon forgotten. The life of a good man or woman never stops."

This was the substance of "Lives That Live," the baccalaureate sermon of the Rev. R. E. Snodgrass to the graduates of the State Teachers College in the college auditorium yesterday afternoon. It was the opening event of commencement week, which will close tomorrow night with the alumni banquet. The class day program was given this morning and the class will present three one-act plays tonight. Former Governor W. L. Harding of Iowa will deliver the annual address at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

"That which is good and great makes itself known, no matter how loud the clamor of denial. That which deserves to live, lives," said the Rev. Mr. Snodgrass. "Man hates to be forgotten. He wants to be remembered. This natural instinct dwells in the hearts of all men. It is no idle ambition to have a part with those who shall be held in everlasting remembrance.

"But how may we, the common people, have reason to expect that our names shall endure while the names of multitudes are lost in eternal oblivion? We will let a few significant examples furnish an answer to that question.

"Nearly two thousand years ago there lived in a little city a young man who did not differ in native ability from thousands of young men about him. But while they are forgotten he is remembered. Not because of his heroism or genius. But it was to this man these words were addressed: 'From a child thou hast known the holy scriptures which are able to make thee wise.' Paul selected this young man to accompany him in his work. Paul knew his man and Timothy knew his bible. Without this quickening word Timothy might have lived and died a peasant among the cold and desolate uplands, unknown to fame and forgotten long ago.

"John Knox was another who served the people. Of lowly birth, living in a modest home of four rooms, but when he died the whole city was in sorrow and they buried him among their kings. When Queen Mary died in the same city, Edinburg said, 'Send England word. There is no place for her in our burying grounds.'

"The righteous shall be held in everlasting remembrance, but the wicked

HARRY A. MILLER JOINS NOVELISTS

IS AUTHOR OF "THE BLACKSMITH OF HEBRON."

TO BE PUBLISHED SOON

"A Fascinating Story Radiant With Inspiration," Says Publishing Company's Prospectus.

Prof. Harry Albert Miller, head of the public speaking department of the State Teacher' College, has joined the ranks of successful novelists, with "The Blacksmith of Hebron," a book soon to be published by the Roxburgh Publishing Company of Boston.

Professor Miller has taken the scene of his book from his former home in Indiana, while the characters in his story are taken from actual life. Parts of the book, however, reflect the influence of the writer's environment here.

"The Blacksmith of Hebron" is a story of village life. In setting it resembles "Main Street" the greatest success of the present year, but its treatment is from an entirely different angle. Professor Miller defends the village, rather than ridiculing its customs. He has written a good, clean story, attempting, by choosing the blacksmith as his central character, to show the influence in every day life of the common man.

The Roxburgh Publishing Company each year selects from hundreds of manuscripts selected the five most worthy of publication, and Professor Miller's novel is one of these. Critics have assured him that the book will be well received and will bring financial returns proportionate to its merit.

The company which is preparing to publish the story for Professor Miller has issued advance notice hailing it as a really worthwhile and inspiring narrative. The prospectus is as follows:

"You will like this fascinating story, the life of a common village blacksmith—a man who has so much of humanity and God in his life—a man who, though with rugged exterior, has a soul refined as with fire, a voice musical and gentle, hands powerful but ministrative, a heart trembling with the emotions of love and service. You cannot help

COOPER GETS LETTER FROM THOMAS EDISON

Speaks Highly of the Splendid Work Being Done Here in Vitalized Agriculture

County Superintendent Bert Cooper recently sent to Thomas A. Edison at Orange, N. J., bulletins and other printed matter in regard to the vitalized agriculture work in the rural schools of Nodaway County. Nat. Sisson of this city suggested the idea to Mr. Cooper.

Mr. Cooper Saturday received the following letter from Mr. Edison:

"Your interesting letter of May 25th and the bulletins and printed matter which you kindly sent me, have been read from one end to the other and are certainly fascinating.

"You are doing splendid work. This, together with educational movies, would change the world entirely in thirty years. Yours very truly,

(Signed) "THOS. A. EDISON."

THOUGHT CAR WAS "IN LOW" BUT WENT THE OTHER WAY

J. J. Heifner's Car Tries to Climb Stairs to His Office in Michau Building.

J. J. Heifner drove his Overland touring car into the door of the Michau building at 8:30 o'clock this morning smashing the glass of the door and knocking a brick out of the casing. The car was not damaged.

According to Mr. Heifner his car was facing the building and he threw his car into reverse, as he thought, when he let out the clutch he found that his car was in low instead and as his brakes were bad he was unable to stop the car before it hit the door.

The door to the Michau building is between the Graham store and Montgomery Shoe Company and it was only luck that saved one or both of the plate glass fronts to these stores.

Miss Alma Lucas, Indian Seeress, Sees Future of Class

Garbed as an Indian maid and seated by a campfire with an Indian tepee in the background. Miss Alma Lucas was the central figure in a beautiful and impresive part of the class day program at the College this morning, the class legend.

The auditorium was darkened as the legend taller came and sat by the campfire. With thoughts of the past, she began telling how the tribes of the seniors came to the camping ground at the college. She told of the great spirit entrusting the tribe into the hands of the chief, Charles Wells, and telling him to rule them wisely. How as strangers at the new camping ground they builded their homes and soon became accustomed to the life under the great chief, Richardson, was told. Of their many trials, and of their abundant happiness, much was said.

Then the narrator looked into the dying embers of the campfire and the present, past, and future of all of the members of the tribe. She saw the chief, Charles Wells, as someday president of the land, with Nell Hudson, the scribe of the tribe, as his secretary, and as his wife she the name of Ellen, but the last name was lost.

Mary Woolridge, the great cook of the tribe had lost her heart to the pale face. She was again cooking.

In Ada Dinsmore she saw a great artist, with a career begin in the days when she wove the legends of the tribe in basketry.

Vi June Colden had been approached by a strange "Slim White" man and had gone into the land of the pale face.

She saw the days when E. O. Harvey, the brave, had entertained the tribe with his prowess and had won the admiration of all of the maidens.

Calling back the past she remembered such members of the camp as Faye Townsend of the beautiful hair; Maud Flemming, the demure; Mary Elizabeth Brown, the singer; and Anna May Gillis of the whispering tongue. Edith Holt also was remembered as one loved by all but mostly by Mike.

In the future Mary Margaret Richey was seen as a teacher of children searching the archives of the tribe, she recalled how everyone once thought that Martin would some day place a band of gold beside the circlet with the diamond.

Looking into the future of the sponsors of the class, the Indian maiden saw Miss Winn, the faithful, touring Europe in a Ford with a Major at her side. Miss Dow was seen as the star of the New York stage.

As the members died away the maiden rose and thought of the future of the camp at the college. She mourned the fact that it was to be occupied by others but the mourned more than anything else the fact that the incoming palefaces were not on a level with the braves.

The program was opened with a piano solo by Miss Mary Margaret Richey. The senior cane was presented by the class president, Charles Wells, to the junior president, Paul Pickens.

The class gift was presented to the school by Miss Edith Holt and was in the form of a statue. The statue is "The Appeal to the Great Spirit" and is a companion statue to, "The Scout" presented by the class of 1919.

The tree oration, given by Ira Fantz, was given on the campus.

The exercises ended this morning with the singing of the class song "Oh Maryville," written by Miss Minnie James.

The president's reception for the graduating class and the faculty will be held at the residence this afternoon at four o'clock.

UEL W. LAMKIN ELECTED TO HEAD TEACHERS' COLLEGE

BOARD OF REGENTS CHOOSES RICHARDSON'S SUCCESSOR THIS AFTERNOON.

HAS A BRILLIANT RECORD

Was State Superintendent of Schools in 1916-17-18—Is now National Director Vocational Education.

Uel W. Lamkin, formerly state superintendent of schools and now national director of vocational education, was elected president of the State Teachers College at a meeting of the Board of Regents here this afternoon. He will succeed President Ira Richardson, whose resignation was recently accepted to take effect at the end of the summer term. Mr. Lamkin was elected for a term of two years.

Mr. Lamkin is thoroughly conversant with the affairs of the college here, having been ex-officio member of the Board of Regents in 1916-17-18, while he was state superintendent of schools. He is recognized as a genuinely big man, exceptionally able as a promoter and executive. He is now in Washington, D. C., where he has charge of the vocational education of former service men.

Mr. Lamkin was born January 18, 1877, in California, Mo. He was educated in Clinton Academy, conducted by his father, the late E. P. Lamkin, from which he was graduated in 1893, and in University of Missouri. He began teaching in 1897, became principal of the Clinton high school in 1901, resigning in 1906 to enter the University of Missouri. He was elected county school commissioner of Henry county in 1901, and re-elected in 1903 and 1905.

During the term of Howard A. Gass as state superintendent of schools, Mr. Lamkin was made chief clerk in January, 1907, and he became the first high school inspector for the state superintendent of schools in August of that year. In 1909, he resigned to become county superintendent of Henry county, to which position he was elected in 1909, and again for a four year term in 1911. In 1907 he passed the bar examination and was admitted to the practice of law in Missouri.

Upon the death of State Superintendent Gass, he was appoint by Governor Major September 23, 1916, to succeed him. He was succeeded by Samuel A. Baker as state superintendent of schools in 1918.

Mr. Lamkin has visited Maryville and the State Teachers College several times while state superintendent of schools and an ex-officio member of the board of regents of the institution.

It is expected he will come to Maryville within the next few weeks to get acquainted with the faculty and student body of the institution and to make plans for the school year commencing next September. No more faculty appointments will be made until his arrival.

His selection is a very popular one. He is highly recommended and school people throughout the state strongly support him.

Mr. Lamkin married Miss Mary Cabell Dickinson of Clinton, in 1909, and has one son.

The full membership of the board was in attendance at the meeting this afternoon.

FORMER MARYVILLE PEOPLE IN FLOOD

BROTHER OF FRED NEWLON IS IN CHARGE OF TROOPS.

PUEBLO IS DEVASTATED

Fears of Second Overflow Are Allayed As Waters Recede Into Normal Channels.

Pueblo, Colo., June 6.—This city of 50,000 inhabitants early today had not yet awakened from stupor into which it was thrown Friday night when the great rush of water ran over the banks of the Arkansas river and swept over the entire business district and many of the poorer residental sections.

The waters are nearly back to their normal channel today. The excitement is slowly subsiding and fears of new floods of even greater magnitude than those which had the city in its grip for more than forty-eight hours were dispelled.

North Main and Union streets are a mass of debris today and it is impossible for rescue workers to make their way through this section.

Military forces in complete control of Lieut.-Col. Paul P. Newlon, who proclaimed military law under authority of the governor of Colorado. The forces are composed of the state militia and Colorado rangers. Searching parties are being formed to recover scores of bodies that are scattered widely over a devastated area.

Thirty-five of the dead have been identified. Eighty-eight bodies are in the morgues. Vague estimates of the dead ranged from 150 to 700.

Soup kitchens have been opened in the stricken city. The city water works is entirely wiped out. Disease is reported as breaking out in a large scale in some quarters.

Every railroad line into the city was out of commission, with many miles of the roadbed washed out. Within the city of Pueblo the railroad situation is much worse. Practically all the roadbed and the rails in the yards have been destroyed.

The damage area in Pueblo itself stretches from four to eight blocks on both sides of the river. The water reached a depth of seventeen feet at Third and Main streets.

Denver, June 6.—Property damaged to the extent of thousands of dollars and scores of families as refugees is the result today of the high water bursting over the banks of the South Platte river together with clod bursts in the suburb of Denver. Houses, barns and fences were carried away by the torrents.

Dispatches from Pueblo today stated Lieut.-Col. Paul P. Newlon was in command of the city. Lieut.-Col. Newlon is a brother of Fred Newlon of this city and is a former Clearmont boy. Newlon is acting superintendent of the rangers of Colorado, an appointment made by the governor of Colorado. He is located in Denver. His family lives at Olney Springs, Colo.

Several former residents of Maryville are living in Pueblo and several of them have been heard from since the but like him—this rugged smith who lives in Hebron at the cross-roads. He is a village Savior.

"You will like Ernest the waif of Hebron, whose drunken father gave him only blows for an heritage. The story of his struggle and rise is radiant with inspiration. He's a noble fellow, a fine pattern for any American youth.

"Then there's Lily who was first to discover possibilities in Ernest. She was his school-mate in the Academy on the hill. She loved him at first sight, but—well, you'll learn the reasons why she selected another man, too.

"But Kate the school teacher of the village is compelling. She's just human, a great girl and proves she is more than a mere teacher. She is inspired by the beautiful hill country, but she lacks religion. The Smith points out the way.

"Deacon Williams is a great character. His cynicism was the talk of the village, but he met a man who, at last redeemed him from his lost estate, for nobody could live a selfish egotist around this God-inspired blacksmith.

Then there is the sweet spirit of Molly the wife of the Deacon who knew him better than he knew himself, but who insistently refused to share his pessimism. She is uncompromisingly beautiful in spirit. You'll love her, because she had an undaunted faith in Ernest and the Smith.

"You'll like the whole story—it smells fresh from the out-of-doors. Did you ever hear of a forest that had a big, throbbing heart? Get acquainted with Old Shady—you can sit in its shade and have the breezes fan your checks. If you want to be better, bigger, nobler, read this fine story—The Blacksmith of Hebron."

TWO RUNAWAY TEAMS STAGE THRILLING RACE

Market Street Turned Into Speedway for a Few Moments This Morning

North Market street was turned into a speedway for a few minutes this morning while a race was staged as thrilling as those in which famous automobile drivers annually defy death at Indianapolis. The participants were two teams of driverless horses which ran wild at the limit of their speed over two blocks of the business section.

One team, hitched to a farm wagon, was owned by Davis Brothers, who live northeast of Maryville. The other was a buggy team owned by Glennn Hathaway of near Stanberry. Except for a broken wheel on the farm wagon and some broken harness, there was no damage to either outfit.

The double runaway started from the hitchracks on Market stret between Second and Third. Walter Davis was preparing to tie his team of grays when his attention was attracted by a passing lawnmower. The horses became frightened, and one of them kicked Mr. Davis. When they began to run he was thrown against the wagon but was not hurt.

The buggy team were hitched next to the grays. As the other horses began to run, they also broke lose. In the block between Third and Fourth streets they drew even with the farm wagon and passed it just before they crossed the intersection. The powerful grays were crowded to the side of the street, and the race ended abruptly when they crashed into the white way post in front of the Bainum Hotel

The force of the collision shattered the globes on the post and broke a steel tire on one of the wheels of the wagon. The horses broke lose but were caught by some of the onlookers as were the buggy team. Had the big farm wagon missed the lamp post and continued down Market street, it would have done serious damage to a row of automobiles parked there.

A large number of persons saw the wild race and a crowd soon collected about its ending place.

CLARINDA'S NEW MEMBERS PUTS CLASS IN RUNNING

Maryville Sikhs Are Only 246 Points in the Lead as Result of Loss Yesterday.

Clarinda took a mighty leap forward yesterday morning in the contest between the men's classes of the Clarinda and Maryville Christian churches. The total of points scored by the Iowans was 862 against 658 for Maryville a gain of 204 points. The Men's Class here is now but 246 points in the lead.

The Clarinda class had 224 members present for 448 points, 190 on time or 190 points, and 112 new members counting 224 points. The attendance in the big tent here was 213, 426 points, with 194 on time, 194 points, and 19 new members, 38 points.

Although his class was severely beaten yesterday the Rev. R. E. Snodgrass was cheered today by the the announcement over the telephone that the Clarinda class had erred in counting new members, and that while the figures would stand as originally given enough would be substracted from future reports to make the correction. Maryville is still in the lead, 3,220 to 2,974.

With four more Sundays left before the end of the contest, the local Sikhs will intensify their efforts to increase the attendance next Sunday to 300 with a goal of 500 for the final Sunday. The class does not work for men who are already attending other classes but for those who are not members of any Sunday school. Visitors, however, are welcome at any of the sessions of the class. While they will not count as new members they will count in the attendance figures, with two points for each man present and an additional point if he is on time.

Another open-air booster meeting will be held on East First next Friday evening.

Why a Woman Screams.

London June 4.—Sir James Cantlie, at a lecture in West Hampstead Town Hall, said that in the First Book of Samuel we learned that rats carried the plague. Yet until quite recent times scientists did not know that fact.

Why does a woman scream when she sees a rat? Because she knows instinctively it carries disease. Women had that instinct of abhorrence from God. Man, the silly ass, would pick up a rat—the fleas flying from it would bite him. The man would then go home, taking the plague into his own household. "Therefore," Sir James added, "I would advise the women to go on screaming."

Japan has decided to adopt the metric system of measures. The House of Peers recently passed a bill stipulating that in the five years to come all leading factories, government works, government offices and technical schools will be asked to use the metric system of weights and measures instead of the Japanese.

The Life Story of Georges Carpentier

By JAMES J. CORBETT.
Formerly World's Heavyweight Champion.
Written Expressly for the International New Service.
(Copyright 1921 by Int. News Service)

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 6.—At the tender age of 18, Georges Carpentier was the idol of France. He was a boxer extraordinary for his years but a diamond in the rough in many ways.

Stretching before him was the road to success with ambition to spur him on and many hard lessons to learn on the way.

His close study of American boxing methods has had much to do with his climb up the ladder. He admitted this much to me recently and it goes without saying that his knowledge of American boxers and their ways is party responsible for confidence he has in his ability to beat Jack Dempsey.

Carpentier has met both kinds of American fighters—the boxers and the sluggers. He has studied English methods almost from the time he started boxing and during the last nine years he has kept a close tab on American boxers from the middleweights up.

Willie Lewis, Billy Papke and Frank Klaus, not to mention Joe Jeanette, taught Carpentier many valuable lessons.

Lewis in his heyday one of the most capable boxers on either side of the Atlantic fought Carpentier in 1912 in Paris. Parisians considered Lewis a fistic marvel. The fact that he had been beaten by Papke and had been held to draw decisions in two fights by his greatest rival, Harry Lewis, whom Carpentier had beaten, made no difference. They figured Willie Lewis is a very dangerous opponent for their idol and they were not wrong.

Carpentier will never forget his fight with Lewis, for the crafty American nearly knocked him cold with a solid right to the jaw in the sixth round after he had been holding his own admirably. That punch sent Georges to his knees, dazed and flighty and he took a long count. He had just enough craftiness left, however, to keep out of harm's way during the next few rounds until his head cleared and he had learned a valuable lesson. That one punch taught him that despite speed and cleverness, a boxer must always remember to protect him that when it seems that he is winning a mile a cool head and a deaf ear to the plaudits of the crowd is invaluable.

Willie tried to defeat Carpentier in a few rounds. He figured, and rightly that the superior staying powers of the youth would go against his age in the end. But try as he might he could not find a vulnerable on the Frenchman after that sixth round, and the end of the twentieth, Georges won the decision.

Carpentier's ability to scent danger and guard against it this early in his career and his cool judgment against fighters of long and varied experience shows that he is a natural born boxer-fighter. His battle with Lewis came at an opportune time, too, for shortly afterward Billy Papke and Frank Klaus, both terrific punchers and among the toughest men the middleweight division ever knew, invaded France looking for trouble and Carpentier was destined to make an attempt to uphold his country's fistic reputation against them.

The lives of Alvin M. Dunn and Glenn D. Ulmer who died overseas during the late war, were highly honored yesterday when thousands of Nodaway county people attended the funeral services and military rites held them.

The body of Glenn D. Ulmer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otho Ulmer, was taken from the home near Gaynor where short funeral services were held at 1 o'clock, Hopkins where the main services were held at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. W. F. Wiley, pastor of the Parnell Methodist church, conducted the services. Military rites were held at Hopkins cemetery where the body was buried. The firing squad was composed of Claude Abey, Ernest Snodgrass, James Ulmer, Robert Tilson, Roy Sturgeon, the Post Commander; Albert Acree, John Whitten, Thomas Dalrymple and Thomas E. Bock. The Hopkins American Legion Post which was named in Ulmer's honor had charge of the rites.

shall rot.'

"There is something wrong with the man who wants to be forgotten. The dynamic of progress is the memory of a great man—the scholar with his stainless life, the soldier with his courage and the citizen with his integrity. All men seek to become immortal and many methods are used and many roads are traveled to attain it.

"Men have entered the aristocracy of rank and station thinking to become immortal. But the wealth of a man's influence is not dependent upon his station or position in life. You cannot tell how much wisdom there is in a book by looking at the binding. The world celebrated the centennial of the Christian poet who wrote for $600 per year. But did the world ever celebrate the centennial of the birth of any of the Georges? Numbers one, two, three, four, little kings who go strutting in and out of their palaces.

"David Livingston lived for Africa. His ambition was to heal that open sore of the world. One day Stanley found him in central Africa. 'Come back with me. Cities like Edinburg and London are calling for you. Money will come in like a golden river. You have earned your honors and now rest.' Livingston answered, 'I am not ambitious for honors. I am only ambitious to do the will of God. . Back to the jungles, back to the fevered swamps, back into certain death went David Livingston. No wreaths for the statue of George or John, but the tomb of Livingston is never without its laurel wreath of immortal remembrance.

"Then again, men enter the real of the physical or material and expect to be immortal. I would not discourage proper attention to the science of body building. But man cannot be described in terms of the physical alone. Men enter the aristocracy of money and hope to be remembered. While money is power and has done much for good and also for evil, yet the world seems to be careful not to preserve the names o fthose who lived for wealth alone. To possess money is not an element of greatness. We do not remember men because of wealth. Washington was a rich man but we seldom think of it. Roosevelt was a wealthy man but that is not what makes him immortal. Men are not in this world to make money but money is in this world to help make men.

"Men enter the realm of culture and think they are destined to be immortal. And culture is not a thing to be despised. But the life of Voltaire is proof enough that one may be cultured and yet sow the seeds of anarchy and irreligion and die an ignominious death.

"But there is an aristocracy which all men may enter and which will bring immortality. And that is God's aristocracy known as Godliness. The question God raises is not why are your ancestry or what about your culture or wealth? But what of your life? The first thing that a human being should recognize is that character is his distinguishing feature."

Little two-year-old Mildred Evans, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Evans, who sang "Jesus Loves Me," was called back for two encores. An exercise, "The Offering Plate" given by the Intermediate was highly applauded. The program was well given and a large portion of the $600 missionary fund was raised.

All classes of the Sunday school of the Buchanan Street Methodist church took part in the exercises held at that church. The program was given in two parts, the elementary division and the main school division. The entertainment was very successful.

Notice to Stock Feeders

Maysville, Mo., May 12, 1921.

To Whom It May Concern:

This is to certify that there has been some Stock Powder agents traveling through this country, claiming that they straightened up 140 of my last fall shoats, with their powders.

This is a mistake, this kind of powder I fed was SUPERIOR STOCK POWDER. My hogs were in bad condition. I had capsuled them twice before I started feeding Superior Powder, and had lost twenty head.

After feeding Superior Powder, I did not loose another shoat. I have fed several kinds of powder and know SUPERIOR to be better and stronger than any I have ever fed. I have used for orders up to this time.
